

» Announcing the Helmut Kohl Award

» Read Kohl's 1991 Berkeley convocation address

Upcoming Events

Nov 28

'To Pay or Not to Pay': WWI and WWII Reparations and their Impact on European (Dis)Integration

Nov 28

'To Pay or Not to Pay': A Historical and Legal Overview of WWI and WWII Reparations, and their Impact on European (Dis?)Integration

Nov 30

States of Exception and Sudden Democracies in 20th Century Germany

IES Video Channel

Mailing List

Subscribe to the IES mailing list and receive updates about our grant deadlines and special events.

Donate to IES

The Institute of European Studies brings disciplines together to create new cross-disciplinary understandings of European issues and issues related to Europe and its constituent nations. Please consider a donation to IES.

UC Berkeley Events Calendar

About Calendar Grants & Fellowships Programs Publications Research Resources

Event search [ ] Go Advanced search >

<< Back to previous page >>

<< Tuesday, November 28, 2017 >>

To Pay or Not to Pay: WWI and WWII Reparations and their Impact on European (Dis)Integration
Lecture | November 28 | 12-1 p.m. | 201 Moses Hall

Speaker/Performer: Spero Simeon Z. Paravantes, University of Luxembourg, Centre for Contemporary and Digital History (C2DH)
Sponsor: Institute of European Studies

Due to the separation between the historical and legal fields which have examined the issue of WWII reparations, no generally accepted definition of their current status exists either in the historical, legal or political spheres. This lack of clarity has greatly contributed to this issue remaining unresolved until the present. In his talk, Spero Paravantes looks at the way the issue was used by the Big Three in their dealings with each other after WWII. In light of the Greek government's continued pursuit of WWI and WWII debts it claims are owed by Germany, and the recent claims made by the Polish government, this talk summarizes the historical, legal and political scholarship on the issue and also comments on its effect on relations between members of the Eurozone and the way in which responses to the issue of WWI reparations, and indeed the legacy of the war itself, have brought political and cultural divisions within the Eurozone again to forefront.

Event Contact: heike@berkeley.edu, 510-843-4588

Remind me
Tell a friend
Add to my Google calendar (GCal)
Download to my calendar
Share

About Calendar Grants & Fellowships Programs Publications Research Resources

November 2017
Event search  Go Advanced search >

<< Back to previous page Print

<< Tuesday, November 28, 2017 >>

'To Pay or Not to Pay': WWI and WWII Reparations and their Impact on European (Dis)Integration Lecture | November 28 | 12-1 p.m. | 201 Moses Hall

Speaker/Performer: Spero Simeon Z. Paravantes, University of Luxembourg, Centre for Contemporary and Digital History (C2DH)
Sponsor: Institute of European Studies

Remind me
Tell a friend
Add to my Google calendar (bCal)
Download to my calendar
Share

Due to the separation between the historical and legal fields which have examined the issue of WWII reparations, no generally accepted definition of their current status exists either in the historical, legal or political spheres. This lack of clarity has greatly contributed to this issue remaining unresolved until the present. In his talk, Spero Paravantes looks at the way the issue was used by the Big Three in their dealings with each other after WWII. In light of the Greek government's continued pursuit of WWI and WWII debts it claims are owed by Germany, and the recent claims made by the Polish government, this talk summarizes the historical, legal and political scholarship on the issue and also comments on its effect on relations between members of the Eurozone and the way in which responses to the issue of WWII reparations, and indeed the legacy of the war itself, have brought political and cultural divisions within the Eurozone again to forefront.

Event Contact: heike@berkeley.edu, 510-643-4558

