

Comics for learning

In a nutshell, this project is about

"Comics for children that are learning how to read"

Honestly, I would like to buy some for my daughter, but they seem not to exist. And now she is reading a Starwars Comics.

Indeed, the sentences in a comics are short and this even easier comics could be the first reading challenge.

Moreover, there could be two levels inside the comics. Namely, in the story there could be a small child that says only very few words.

For example:

- What is your favorite color?
- Red!
- ...
- Let's go to the cinema.
- Cool!

So the first reading challenge would be reading what the small child says. The second challenge is reading all dialogues.

I propose short comics (two pages one next to the other) so that the reading challenge is not too much.

Clearly, the text should be in capital letters.

Notice that these comics could also be used by people of all ages to read a very easy text in a language that is not their mother tongue.

Producing those comics in various languages is in fact quite easy.
